ISSUE EDITOR

Michael Kilpatrick Morton is senior policy counsel for the Nevada Gaming Control Board, providing the board with legal and policy advice. Prior to his tenure in the executive branch, he served as senior deputy legislative counsel to the Nevada Legislature.

It is no secret that all of us, both as members of our communities and as practicing attorneys, are living almost entirely in a digital world. There is a good chance that you are using a public wireless network to access this issue of Nevada Lawyer while reading it on a mobile device. Are you protecting yourself and your clients when using the internet, a cloud server, or emailing client records? Digital privacy and cybersecurity issues are now ubiquitous in our personal and professional lives, and as attorneys, we have an ethical duty to ensure we understand not only how to utilize technology in our practices, but how to ensure that all kinds of data are protected when using such technology.

I hope you find this issue illuminative and helpful for your practices, and that you remain safe and protected as we all traverse this ever-changing digital world.
